CHEMPRO PIER 91
SECURITY

Primary security for the Chempro Pier 91 facility is provided by the Port of Seattle Security Police. The Pier 91 complex, in which the Chempro facility is located, is owned and controlled by the Port of Seattle. Access to the complex is restricted and must be made through gates which are manned by security police 24 hours per day. Unless the vehicle entering has a pass provided by the Port, the occupant must sign in and sign out, as well as state their destination and have someone at the destination also sign the card stating the time they left.

After business hours there is a security officer assigned to regularly check all facilities in the Pier 91 complex. The Chempro facility is checked at least once each hour and usually more often by the security patrol.

In addition, the back side of the plant is fenced and has a locking gate. Warning signs are posted at the back and in the front. The plant is manned for two shifts per day and sometimes around the clock depending upon business.
